When HF first appeared their quality was low and so were their prices. Today their quality is rising and so are their prices, proving once again we get what we pay. Here's another look at why China-produced goods pay more, resulting in higher prices in places like Harbor Freight: 20ga9%20vs. Quote: Chinese wages have risen by about 15-18%/year since about 2000. As a result, the Chinese labour cost/unit output is now about 3X, which it was in 2000. The article also states that the cost is closing enough, adding other costs, such as shipping, stocks, etc., that Offshoring is no longer a profit maker in the past. The quality rises when the Chinese invested in a more modern tool, etc. Interesting to read and if everything comes true, it could mean a revival of U.S. manufacturing. The Covid-19 pandemic may be the catalyst that triggers this change. It's certainly a bright light for the problems associated with the supply chain that extends across the Pacific Ocean. ____ A wise man can change his mind. never does it. I still have a hammer and a couple of cold chisels I bought there. Even drill press, but I do not use it to drill bits larger than 1/4. Bigger engine stalls. I think mine came from Menards in the early 1980s. The problem was that the voltage of the motor was not enough to keep the belt from slipping. The gazebo stopped, but the engine kept spinning. This happened even when the voltage adjustment screw was all the way in. I put half an inch of wood between the screw and the plate and was able to eliminate the slip. It's still there. A few years ago I bought their belt-disc grinder in their huge warehouse in Dillon, SC. It was returned and I got it for $25, usually $70 or so. I took it home and--the same thing--the belt ran, but, all but the lightest loads. I heard something else if I listened carefully. It sounded like something was moving. It was all covered in drive belts and leashing belts and shields. I started taking off the covers and I noticed everything was just finger-proof. The more parts I removed, the more resolve I had to take it completely apart and put things together lightly. When I finally got to the point of taking enough of the ride belt guards away, I found Neither set of screws belt pulley was ever tightened at all! Both pulleys were free to spin their shafts. I've been happy with this purchase because I put everything together properly. ____ Larry Sticks and Bricks: Raleigh, NC 2008 Cherokee 38P: at Ivor, VA Permanently 12-17-2020, 8:26 #56 Junior Member Join date: July 2016 Location: Ohio Posts: 6 Harbor Trade is the result of supply challenges. About 1.5 years ago we bought a Predator 3500 inverter generator on sale. The manager actually told us to buy an extended warranty, and then before it expires, return the generator to the store and exchange a new one for any reason. We did just that and maybe three weeks ago back to the first substitute. No questions were asked. We forgot we had to empty all the fuel from ourrs before they took it away. One of their employees helped my husband run off fuel in the parking lot and loaded a new generator into our truck bed. We bought another warranty and will change again in 1.5 years. It's not a bad thing that there's always a new generator or almost a new generator! 12-18-2020, 10:52 #73 Senior Member Join Date: June 2020 Location: Ohio Posts: 126 I still get regular emails and editions of sales and coupons and free items. I'm also seeing 20% off coupons for my car magazines and home improvement magazines. At least Ohio stores are still offering them now. Who knows how COVID will destroy the economy though. ____ 2009 Ford F-250 Super Duty 2021 Forest River Cherokee Wolf Pup 17JG 12-18-2020, 02:28 #75 Senior Member Join date: June 2020 Location: Long Island NY Posts: 133 Quote: Originally posted by Larry-NC Not bench press. HF has begun marketing higher-priced tools, tool chests, compressors, and they have put many of their standard tools, in a closet. I was shocked to see their torque keys were $100 and up. I just bought a Pittsburgh torque wrench on sale for $9.99 and used a 25% coupon to do so. Sales are getting more and more in between, but they're still there. My point is that these are mostly COVID-based changes, although new lines can crowd out the old one simply because of limited shelf space. On the other hand, if users reject higher-priced lines, the original lines may be pushed out of the higher-priced lines. ____ Larry Sticks and Bricks: Raleigh, NC 2008 Cherokee 38P: at Ivor, VA Permanently Page 4 01-04-2021, 8:11 #81 Senior Member Enrollment Date: August 2018 Posts: 846 JUMPED!
